About the Artist: Keith Johnson received his MFA from RISD. Ten years of teaching led to a move to the business side of photography after completing an MBA. He supports his fine art making as a sales consultant in the northeast and is on the summer faculty at Penland School of Crafts, Visual Studies Workshop, and Maine Media Workshop.

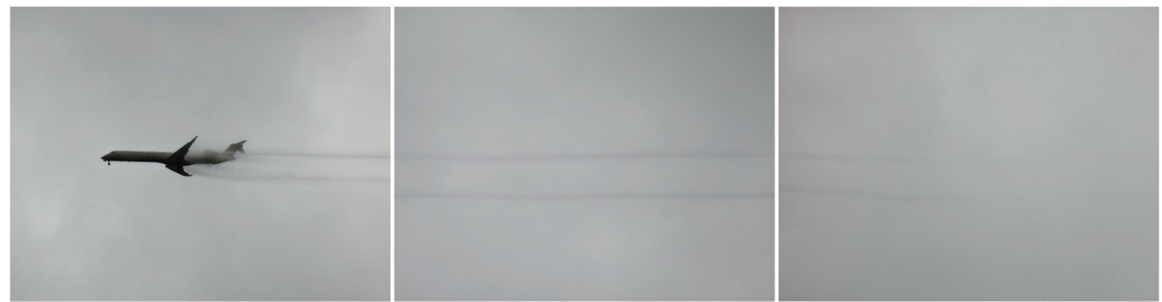

About the Work: Sometimes a single photograph is not able to define the moment or experience of a photographic event. Sometimes the idea has to do with time, cataloging, topology, experience. Keith returns to the question "what's a photograph supposed to look like anyway?" As a group of pictures coalesces, he begins to understand where he's going photographically. He likes the dialog with the work.
